Guided Ride to Greenville Junction Railroad Depot

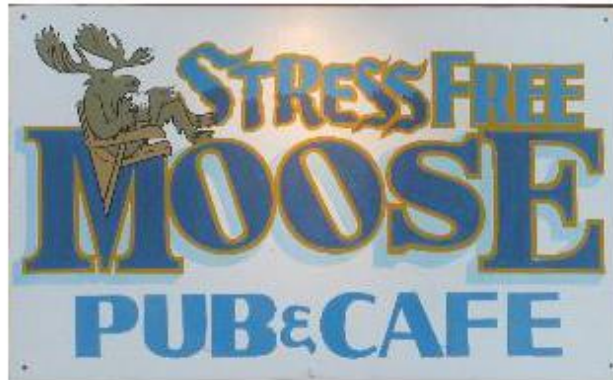

This ride is limited to 200 riders. Sign up will be at registration.

About the Greenville Junction Railroad Depot:

- The original Greenville Junction Railroad Depot building was built by the Canadian Pacific Railroad in 1889. The rounded “witches hat” and ladies waiting room was added sometime between 1901 and 1910.
- The Maine Historic Preservation Society named the Greenville Junction Depot building as the most endangered historic building in Maine in 2008.
- A group of concerned citizens began an organization in 2010 called Greenville Junction Depot Friends for the purpose of raising funds to save the structure from further deterioration and to refurbish the building for community use.
- The current owner of the building is Central Maine and Quebec Railway. They are working with the Greenville Junction Depot Friends to secure this important piece of history
- In its new life, the depot building will provide the Moosehead region with a much-needed community resource building, available for use/rent to the community- for activities such as – senior citizen activities, railroad activities, weddings, dances, musical activities, scouts -to name just a few.
- Greenville Junction Depot Friends obtained IRS 501 (C)(3) status early in 2011. All donations to “Save the Depot” are fully tax deductible as a charitable donation.

Lunch will be provided by Stress Free Moose

The friends of the Greenville Junction Depot are asking for a small donation for lunch. This is to further the restoration of the depot and to return it to its days of glory. Thank you for your support.
